Asset Class Performance

*Hedge fund returns are lagged 1 month. Sources: FactSet, Morningstar. As of April 30, 2022.

Fixed Income (April)

- High inflation, a strong labor market and anticipation of continued Federal Reserve rate hikes pushed interest rates higher in April, putting negative pressure on bond prices across sectors.
- Non-US fixed income fell amid concerns of slowing growth in Europe, strict covid measures in China and a surging U.S. dollar.
- Long duration bonds, which are most sensitive to interest rates, experienced the worst decline.

Equity (April)

- Equities were lower in April, reversing March's gains and continuing their whipsaw in 2022 as investors contended with higher rates, inflation and downward growth revisions/negative GDP growth.
- While Q1 earnings have been modestly positive, negative future guidance added to investor pessimism and created a risk-off attitude.
- Rising rates have weighed especially on growth stocks, which trailed value names in April.

Real Asset / Alternatives (April)

- + While crude is off recent highs, commodities continued their move higher as European governments considered alternatives to Russian oil and gas.
- Rate pressures outweighed positive inflation effects during April, which led real assets lower during the month.

Fixed Income Market Update

U.S. Treasury Yield Curve

Higher interest rates were primarily fueled by expectations of a 50 basis point hike at the Fed's May meeting. Yields on the long end rose more than the front end in April.

Index Performance Attribution (April 2022)

Treasuries continued to outpace spread sectors in April's risk-off environment. Foreign bonds suffered as the US dollar gained ground due to concerns of slowing growth abroad and higher rates in the U.S.

Credit Market Spreads – Trailing 5 Years

Risk off sentiment worked its way into the bond market in April, pushing both investment grade and high yield corporate spreads wider. Heavy issuance within the investment grade market added to the widening and spreads ultimately ended 19 basis points higher; now sitting above the 10-year average.

Equity Market Update

Market Capitalization & Style Performance (April 2022)

Reversing March's trends, April saw domestic equity markets lag their international counterparts. Growth trailed value across geographies as rates rose, with the spread in domestic equities especially wide, while emerging market stocks were punished roughly equally by investors.

U.S. Equities – Returns by Sector (April 2022)

Consumer Staples was the only S&P 500 sector with a positive return during the month. Growth names led the way down amid a big upward move in interest rates and poor earnings guidance, arising from inflationary pressures and supply chain concerns.

Real Asset Market Update

Real Assets Performance

Commodities continued their positive momentum on the back of accelerating inflation that once again exceeded expectations. The energy sector continues to lead the way, as Russia's war on Ukraine clouds the supply outlook.

Source: FactSet. As of April 30, 2022.

REIT Sector Performance

Real estate was broadly lower amid higher rates and inflationary pressures, with lodging/resorts the exception as travel demand bounced back. Office and health care trailed as long lease duration assets continue to suffer in the macroeconomic environment.
