Any forecasts represent future expectations and actual returns; volatilities and correlations will differ from forecasts. This report does not represent a specific investment recommendation. Please consult with your advisor, attorney and accountant, as appropriate, regarding specific advice. Past performance does not indicate future performance and there is a possibility of a loss.

Market Themes

1. Capital markets continued to exhibit high volatility as investors contend with the rising odds of a recession. Returns across asset classes were broadly negative for the quarter.
2. The Fed's more hawkish stance and intensified commitment to combat high inflation comes at the risk of accelerating the onset of an economic slowdown.
3. Recessions and the volatility that typically accompanies them often sets the stage for better forward-looking opportunities in the market with lower entry prices.

Markets Moving Ahead of the Fed

Markets have moved quickly, reacting to the Fed's increasingly hawkish posture by adjusting their rate expectations for the Fed's final meeting of the year in December 2022. Markets have priced in significantly higher terminal rates for this year than the current level of 1.50 – 1.75%.

Higher Recession Risk

Softening economic data, including data from both producers and consumers, reveals the rising probability of an economic slowdown with the three-pronged challenge of high inflation, supply chain issues and an aggressive Fed.

Staying Invested is Key

Although the probability of a recession may be rising, trying to predict its start date may prove to be a fool's errand. Equity markets see the most volatility before and during a recession; yet returns following the onset of a recession are typically strong given the forward-looking nature of markets.

Economic Review

U.S. Breakeven Inflation Levels

While current inflation levels remain elevated relative to history, expectations for inflation over the medium- and longer-term have come down significantly in recent months.

Source: FactSet. As of June 30, 2022.

Leading Economic Indicators

Leading economic indicators have fallen from peak levels but remain in positive territory supporting a positive outlook for economic growth in the near-term.

Source: FactSet, Conference Board. As of May 31, 2022.

U.S. Labor Market – Number of Unemployed per Job Opening

The U.S. labor market remains tight, with less than 1 job seeker for each job opening. This historic tightness in the job market may support wage growth.

Source: FactSet, DOL, BLS. As of June 30, 2022.

Markets and Cycles

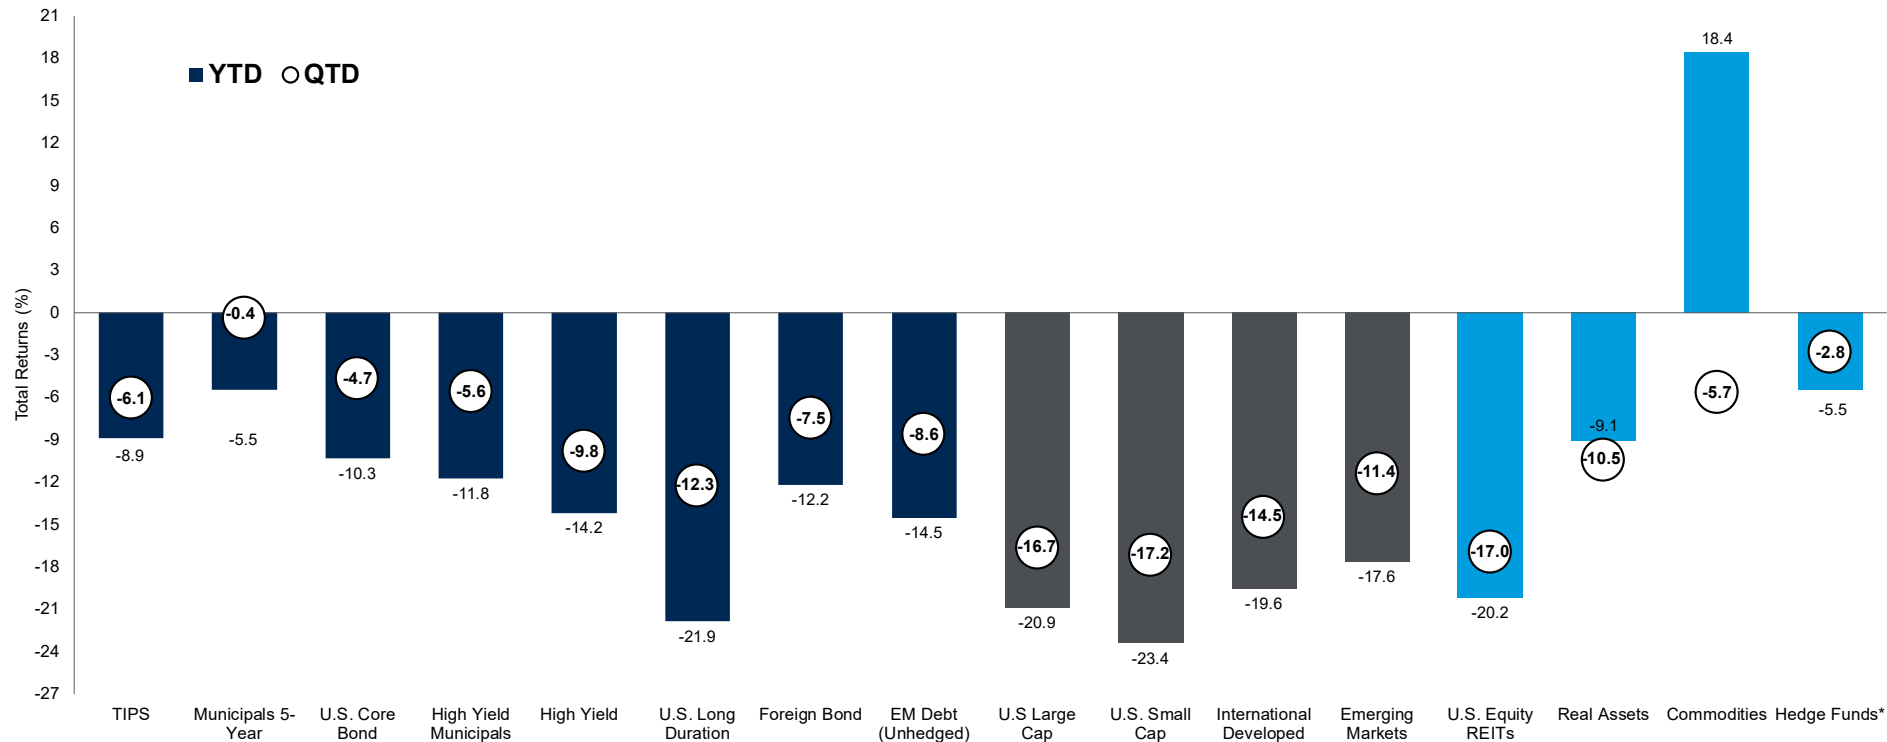

Historically, markets have led the economy as indicated by industrial production, lending credence to their forward-looking nature.

Asset Class Returns

Source: Morningstar Direct. As of June 30, 2022. *Hedge fund returns as of May 31, 2022.

Fixed Income (2Q)

- The Federal Reserve raised its target rate by 75 basis points in June. Interest rates moved broadly higher in advance of the announcement and pushed bond returns negative.
- Spread sectors generally underperformed for the quarter, with notable weakness in the U.S. high yield market.
- In addition to suffering from a longer duration profile in the face of rising interest rates, a strengthening U.S. dollar was a drag on non-U.S. fixed income returns.

Equity (2Q)

- Equity markets added to their first quarter losses as focus shifted to record-high inflation, the Fed's commitment to fighting it and evidence of a slowing global economy, in addition to the conflict in Ukraine.
- Although the rout was broad-based, discrepancies persisted with growth names losing to value names and major differences between sectors.
- Emerging markets and international developed names beat domestic ones, though were still lower. The former were buoyed by a late-quarter reopening in China.

Real Asset / Alternatives (2Q)

- + Energy markets continued to exhibit strength, though a late quarter June selloff reflects broader concerns of a slowing economy.
- Other commodities, including both industrial and precious metals, as well as REITs, were led lower over slowing growth concerns, political grandstanding and the potential investors are taking profits given 2022 returns.
- + Hedge funds continued to exhibit lower volatility than the market, albeit with some negative returns.

Fixed Income Market Update

U.S. Treasury Yields Curve

Interest rates jumped in anticipation of the Fed's decision to raise the Fed Funds rate by 75 basis points in June but retreated late in the quarter on increasing concerns of an economic slowdown. The 1-year yield spiked from 1.1% to 2.5%, while the 10-year ended 66 basis points higher.

Source: FactSet. As of June 30, 2022.

Index Performance Attribution (2Q 2022)

Spread sectors generally lagged Treasuries during the second quarter. Foreign bonds were more susceptible to higher interest rates and a strengthening U.S. dollar, while high yield came under pressure over growing fears of recession.

Source: FactSet. As of June 30, 2022.

Corporate Market Spreads – Trailing 5 Years

Despite a relatively favorable earnings season, growing fears of an economic slowdown have investors shunning riskier areas of the fixed income market. As a result, both investment grade and high yield corporate bond spreads widened and moved back above their respective 10-year averages to levels last seen in summer 2020.

Source: FactSet. As of June 30, 2022.

Equity Market Update

Equity Valuations (Trailing PE – Last 15 Years)

During the quarter, prices fell significantly and pushed multiples below historic averages. Despite growth concerns, analysts' second-half 2022 EPS estimates remained steady.

Source: FactSet. As of June 30, 2022.

U.S. Equities – Return by Sector (2Q 2022)

While all sectors were negative for the quarter, defensive names fared better than their cyclical and highly-valued peers as investors adopted a risk-off stance.

Source: Morningstar Direct. As of June 30, 2022.

Country Total Returns (%) – Top 10 Largest Economies

Concerns over slowing growth, high inflation, and aggressive central banks were common themes globally. Equity markets, both developed and emerging, were lower. Germany remains under pressure given its reliance on Russian natural gas and recent measures such as a shift back to coal-based power plants to address concerns. China was a positive outlier: investors had been concerned about the economic impact of severe COVID restrictions; the lifting of restriction was viewed in positive light.

Real Assets Market Update

Commodity Performance

Energy commodities soared early in the quarter with strong demand and further sanctions on Russia; however, prices retreated in the second half of the quarter as recession concerns impacted demand and markets priced in potential export bans and taxes on excess profits. Metals and agricultural commodities similarly saw prices fall as countries sought to find suppliers besides Russia and Ukraine.

Source: Morningstar Direct. As of June 30, 2022.

REIT Sector Performance

Long-duration assets in the industrial and office sectors were hit hard by higher interest rates, while highly-priced sectors such as data centers and specialty segments saw prices come down amid a market-wide repricing.
